

Wednesday 26th February

Dear Parents and Carers

NSPCC Online Safety – Free workshop for Parents & Carers

As part of the school's work to safeguard and promote the welfare of all pupils, we have organised for Amy Holland from the NSPCC, to visit school to deliver an online safety workshop. The session is suitable, for parents, carers and other adult family members who have a role in supervising children when they have access to the internet.

Friday 14th March 9.00am – 10.00am in the Dane Hall (key stage 2 building)

Some of the content covered will include:

- how children use the internet and technology
- keeping children safe from sexual abuse online
- the risks children may encounter online
- online radicalisation and extremism
- sharing personal content
- bullying online

We would encourage as many of you who are able to attend this free course to do so. Keeping our children safe online, by educating them to use the internet safely, and by educating ourselves so we remain up to date and understand the changing risks, is increasingly important and increasingly challenging. The sessions should be useful for families with children of all ages

Tea, coffee and pastries will be available. Please return the reply slip to your child's class teacher as soon as possible so we can cater appropriately.

We look forward to seeing you there.

Yours sincerely,
Mr Rob Cole
(Headteacher)
